75 Years of Craftsmanship

SULLIVAN & CROCKER
BOOKBINDERS FOR 75 YEARS

Seventy-five years of valuable service to the city of New Bedford came to a close this past month as the firm of Sullivan & Crocker closed its doors. The firm, started in the heyday of the whaling industry, was one of the few bookbinders to be found in this area. The owner, Mr. Alfred Berard, started with the business as an errand boy and worked his way up through the various operations of the business until he knew them all and finally bought the business. The business was originally owned by Hutchinson's Book Store. Mr. Berard can remember delivering work to customers in the center by wheelbarrow as was the common practice then. The original name was Sullivan & Markey. In about 1909, Sullivan formed a partnership with Crocker and that has been the name ever since. Originally, it was located at 93 Union Street at the Johnny Cake Hill corner and employed about 10 people. This was next to the old Mansion House which will be recalled by many New Bedford people. The Mansion House finally took over that location to build a coffee shop and the firm was relocated at 128 Union Street. The Mansion House later burned. Sullivan & Crocker remained at 128 Union Street until Urban Renewal tore down the building. Then it was moved to the old Reynolds building. The main occupation was bookbinding and ruling but printing was also done. Mr. Berard is shown on the cover in action with the various machines, all of which date back to the original ownership. (Top left) He is shown at the bench with a book that he has just finished binding. This work is a hand craft. Machines can assist but most of the work is a careful, skilled hand cut and fitted, glued and stamped operation. (Upper right) The owner is shown at the cutter. This rugged old machine performed every cutting operation that a new one would deliver. It wasn't so pretty or quite so safe but over all of the years it delivered the goods. (Center left) The typesetting table, which hasn't changed a bit since Ben Franklin was in the business, is the place where the lead type is stored in bins to be handset, letter by letter, in the form where it is locked and finally placed in the handfed press (center right). (Lower Left) This wooden machine is a ruling machine 100 years old. The men who put it together were honest workmen who made a machine they could guarantee. It looks similar to a four poster bed. On a beam across the center, a series of quills, each with its own fountain of ink, drew lines upon the paper being drawn through on a bed of canvas. The strings visible in the foreground kept the sheets of paper in place on the canvas endless belt. The machine was handfed. Various colors of ink could be ruled on the paper in the same pass as long as the lines were parallel. This ruling machine still works just as well as it ever did, and thousands of miles of red and blue lines have been clocked since the day Sullivan & Markey picked it up as a 25-year old second hand. Miss Barbara Crabtree is shown at the sewing frame, also wooden. The pages of the book are assembled on this frame to be hand-sewn together before binding. Miss Crabtree and Mr. Berard have done all of the many operations between them for a number of years. This highly skilled craft, that bridges the span between the whaling period of New Bedford and the space age, is fast disappearing. Soon a beautifully hand-bound book will be as much treasured for its binding as for its contents. Thousands of such books throughout the New Bedford area have been collated, stitched, cut and welcomed the Regional Scholarship Club members and guests, and introduced the principal of Wareham High School, Mr. William Paling; the principal of Old Rochester, Mr. Frank Gifune; Bill Maxwell, Wareham coach; and Jerry Oliva, coach of the Bulldogs. Mr. Mallowes explained the beginning of an idea that caught fire and developed into the Cranberry Bowl - complete with football contest, dance and a cranberry queen. He said that the Exchange Club first undertook to make the bowl game their special project with the proceeds going to create scholarships for deserving students from both Wareham and Old Rochester. Later, the Regional Scholarship Club was formed and incorporated to carry on the work that makes this rivalry so worthwhile. The club consists of approximately 25 hard working members and they are most fortunate to have the help of Mrs. Rita Blair who has charge of the contest to choose the Cranberry Queen.

Cranberry Queen candidates are chosen

Coaches Bill Maxwell of Wareham and Jerry Oliva of Old Rochester are shown with Cranberry Bowl Queen Kris Goodenough at the kick-off dinner for the affair. Between the coaches is the silver bowl that has generated so many great contests. The winning team will take it and display it as a symbol of victory for a year.

from the junior classes of both high schools by ballot and are chosen on the basis of appearance, personality, character and scholarship. The Queen is chosen on the night of the dance on the basis of an interview with the judges and an appearance in evening gowns. All of the candidates rode in the Veterans' Day Tri-Town parade in Mattapoisett. They will be introduced in a ceromony before the game at the Cranberry bowl.

The Cranberry Bowl is awarded to the captain of the winning team at the dance. The bowl is held for one year. If a school wins the bowl 3 years in succession that school keeps the bowl permanently. Last year, Wareham won its third successive game and has the original bowl in its trophy case.

Both principals, Mr. Paling and Mr. Gifune, spoke very highly of the efforts of the Scholarship Club membership and both gave assurance that the Cranberry Bowl would be carried on in spite of the change in leagues and schedules that have occurred since the beginning of the rivalry. They agreed that, if necessary, the game could be put on under the lights. In answer to a question about the method employed in choosing the queen both principals were agreed that more time to hold the balloting would be of help.

Bill Maxwell, coach of the Vikings, said that the Cranberry Bowl and its activities have caught up the entire student body and made them a part of the game. He noted the fine spirit between the two schools and the intense rivalry on the field that has seen victory seesaw between the teams year after year. Coach Jerry Oliva, Bulldog coach, said that, while he has had no actual experience in the Cranberry Bowl, that he has certainly heard much about it. He said that he is looking forward to taking part in the continuation of this rivalry that has produced such a great record. He thanked the club for its efforts in promoting the game.

Kris Goodenough, Cranberry Bowl Queen, thanked the club for making it possible for her to represent them. She said the experi-

That expression of their feelings was such an honor that this alone would have been enough. To be chosen as queen from among all of the candidates was a great experience but she said that she valued being chosen by her classmates, to represent them, even more. James Gruler, president of the Wareham High School student body, thanked the club for promoting the Cranberry Bowl. He said that the election of the queen made the students feel their importance in the Cranberry Bowl and stirred their interest and spirit.

WAREHAM CANDIDATES FOR QUEEN

Nov. 21 - "The Crucible"

TICKETS FOR "THE CRUCIBLE"

Tickets for the Senior Drama Club's November 21st presentation of "The Crucible" will be distributed this week, according to ticket chairman, Richard Helfand. The tickets may be purchased from any Drama Club member, or at the door of the Bristol auditorium before the 8:00 P.M. curtain the night of the performance.

This production of Arthur Miller's "The Crucible" is a special two-act adaptation. "Crucible", as intended by playwright Miller in the titling of his dramatic piece, means: "a severe test or trial". The setting of the play is Salem, Massachusetts in 1692, and the "severe test or trial" refers to the infamous climax of Salem's historical witch hunt era.

Senior Drama coach, Nancylee Gaucher is directing the large cast, headed by James Lawrence in the role of John Proctor (originally created on Broadway by Arthur Kennedy) and David Sullivan in the role of Reverend John Hale (originally created on Broadway by E. G. Marshall). Both James and David are remembered by local audiences for their spectacular performances in last Spring's O.R.R. smash production, "Oliver!" James charmingly enacted the classic "Fagin", with inimitable impeccability, while David impressed theatregoers with a perfectly poised and polished rendition of the pompous Beadle, "Mr. Bumble".

PATIENT AT NURSING HOME

Mrs. Marion S. Hatton of Plymouth, formerly of Mattapoisett, is in the Plymouth Nursing Home, 35 Warren Avenue, Plymouth. Mrs. Hatton will be in the Nursing Home for the winter. She is in a brace and can walk around and can lie down on the bed but is not allowed to sit down except for her meals. Her arm and hand seem to be the worst and she is strapped to a steel plate. This was caused by a fall downstairs on wet leaves.

A THANK YOU

I wish to thank all my friends and relatives who remembered me with cards, flowers and delicacies while I was a recent patient in Tobey Hospital and recovering at home.
